LESS REVENUE FROM INCOME TAX THIS YEAR

Treasury Department's Prediction of 9 Per Cent Decrease Is Upheld
SEND OUT QUESTIONNAIRES
Expect Coolidge Will Veto Bill Calling for Tax Rate Reduction

Washington—The treasury department reflects these days a feeling of confidence that its prediction made to the ways and means committee last fall concerning the probable drop in earnings of corporations in 1927 to the amount of about 9 per cent will be vindicated by the March income tax returns.

This feeling is fortified by examination of the results of an informal questionnaire sent out by the treasury to about 1100 corporations asking them to make an estimate of what their net income for 1927 will show and that if they did not have definite figures available as yet they were to give the best estimate they could and that under no circumstances would they be committed to such figures in the event they wanted to vary them in their final returns.

The purpose of the questionnaire was to get a line ahead of time as to the 1927 earnings so as to assist the treasury in making its report to congress as soon after March 15 as possible.

COOLIDGE MAY VETO
Examination of the formal returns thus far received shows that the treasury was about right and that the figure will run close to 9 per cent, with not much variation either above or below the 1927 earnings as to assist the treasury in making its report to congress as soon after March 15 as possible.

SOME SUGGESTIONS HAVE BEEN advanced that Mr. Coolidge might on returning the general revenue bill with his veto, ask for the passage of a simple resolution cutting down the corporation taxes and that this would then have a good chance of passage, as the rates were raised a year ago when there was real need of it.

Anyhow the chances for tax reduction are growing less and less favorable each day and the Coolidge administration is getting ready to point out that the chamber of commerce plan for a $400,000,000 reduction was not based on accurate information. The answer that will be made is that 1927 is not a safe basis for the measure of income tax returns over a period of years but on the other hand the treasury will have the 1927 figures before congress and neither house is likely to flout actual returns.

AURORA MAN WAITS 100 YEARS BEFORE JOINING A CHURCH

Aurora, Ill.—(AP)—William Shannon, who at the age of five years came west with his foster parents, Wednesday celebrated his one-hundred and first birthday.

Last Sunday, he was baptized into the First Evangelical church here by the Rev. Philip Beuscher.

In explaining why he waited 160 years to join a church, Uncle Billy said: "Church did not appeal to me in my younger days, because the preachers all talked about hell fire and damnation. Nowadays they're different."

The pioneer was married five times and has four daughters and a son living.

TAKE CONFESSION OF DAM BREAKERS

50 Men Who Took Part in Dynamiting of 200-mile Pipe Discovered

Independence, Cal.—(AP)—Alleged confessions of three of the dynamiters of the Los Angeles aqueduct in Owens Valley, during a water war that raged intermittently over a period of years Wednesday were in the possession of Inyo county's district attorney, Jesse Hession.

The confessions contained names and addresses of 5 to 50 plotters and dynamiters, of persons who bought the explosives, engineered the attacks, and even of those who touched off charges in the night that tore out sections of the 200-mile long steel pipe that carries the city's main water supply from the high Sierras. Hession declined to reveal any names pending arrests.

The first assault of force against the city coming after Owens Valley residents had sought without success millions of dollars of reparations for damages from the loss of water, was made in 1924. Armed ranches took possession of the Alabama spillway gates, turning the city's water supply into the desert and resisting attempts to dislodge or dissuade them for 65 hours.

Sections of open concrete lined conduits, and 12-foot thick steel aqueduct pipe were blasted away in several attacks later. The most disastrous, the destruction of more than 300 feet of siphon pipe in No Name canyon, occurred last spring. Aqueduct guards reported they were driven from their posts by armed dynamiters.

TWO MEN KILLED AS MARINE PLANE FALLS

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti—(AP)—Second Lieutenant John T. Harris, United States Marine Corps, of Greenfield, Mo., and Homer Howell, representative of the United Fruit Co., were killed when an airplane piloted by Harris crashed at Port-de-Paix Tuesday.

Details of the crash have not been determined and an official investigation will be made by a board of Marine flyers.

Harris left Port-Au-Prince in the morning with Second Lieutenant Cabell Bailey, Quantico football star, to make a combination mail and photographic trip to Cape Haitien by way of Port-de-Paix. After landing at Port-de-Paix, Harris took Howell, who formerly was a marine sergeant and captain of the Haitian Gendarmerie, up for a photographic flight. Washington birthday festivities were canceled because of the accident.

Oil Investigators Think $75,000 in Bonds Used to Help Republicans

Washington—(AP)—A number of New York, Chicago and Boston bankers were summoned Wednesday to appear Thursday before the senate Teapot Dome committee which is seeking to determine how much of the Liberty bond profits of the Continental Trust Co. was used to pay off the Republican national committee deficit in 1922 and 1923.

Those asked to come with books and records were William H. Gilks, assistant cashier of the Continental National bank and Trust Co., Chicago; John Prentice, assistant cashier of the Chase National Bank, New York; N. C. Lester, cashier of the National City Bank, New York; and B. D. Blaisdell, cashier of the First National Bank, Boston.

In following the devious trail of the Continental bonds the committee now has established that at least $75,000 of the $3,500,000 total reached the Republican national committee and were used by Will H. Hays, former chairman of the committee, to pay off a committee note at the Empire Trust Co., New York.

Harry F. Sinclair has been shown to have participated in the Continental profits, he having been one of the moving spirits of its organization. Hays testified that the lessee of Teapot Dome gave the Republican organization $75,000.

JUDGE UNDER FIRE IN CAR STRIKE CASE

Senate Committee "Razzes" Baltzell for Issuing Car Strike Injunction

Washington—(AP)—Federal District Judge Baltzell came under fire from members of a senate judiciary subcommittee Tuesday for issuing an injunction in the Indianapolis street car strike in July, 1926.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, chairman of the committee, declared flatly that on the record as made before the committee by spokesmen for both the street railway company and the union the judge was not justified in issuing an injunction restraining John M. Barker and A. B. Armstrong, street railway union organizers, from advising the employees to strike.

"It seems to me," Norris said to W. H. Latta, attorney for the Indianapolis Street Railway company, "that on the showing you have made here Judge Baltzell ought not to have issued this injunction. He called these men from advising employees of the company to do what they had a legal right to do."

Roads Open In Spite Of Heavy Snow

County Crews Ready to Go to Work if Drifts Close Highways

Appleton and vicinity was reminded Wednesday morning, by a ten-inch blanket of snow, that spring still was some distance away.

Snow started falling early Tuesday night and the storm continued until nearly noon Wednesday. The snow fall, measured by Schaefer Hardware company, was ten inches. The arrival of snow, however, tempered the cold spell which visited Appleton Sunday and remained until Tuesday night.

Buses, street cars and trains were running on schedule despite the storm. No trouble was experienced by the telephone company and none was expected unless the snow turned to sleet.

Roads to Appleton were passable despite the snow and at 10 o'clock none of the county snow removal equipment had been ordered out according to John Hale, superintendent of the highway department.

"Trucks, men and plows are ready to move on the highways at a moment's notice," Mr. Hale said. He did not believe it would be necessary to send out the equipment, however, unless the storm continued or the snow started drifting.

Traffic about the city was hampered early Wednesday morning, although R. P. Hackworth, street commissioner, had several plows at work and by noon lanes had been cleared on all important streets. No extra men were put to work Wednesday, Mr. Hackworth said, although he planned to engage between 40 and 50 men Thursday morning. Mr. Hackworth intended to release some of his regular crew Wednesday morning, but the storm kept all the workers busy.

"I expect to have graders on the important streets about 2 o'clock Thursday morning and they will pile the snow so that the snow loader can be used," Mr. Hackworth said. He asked motorists to cooperate with the department by not parking cars until after the snow loader had passed and picked up the banks of snow prepared by the graders.

The weather forecast for Wisconsin is more snow or possible rain Wednesday night with a drop in temperature. Thursday, the forecast of strong shifting winds indicates there will be some drifting Thursday.

ADMIRAL GETS SCOLDING FROM NAVAL COURT

Charge Commander of Salvage Crew Did Not Measure Up to His Job

Washington—(AP)—Commanders of the submarine S-4 and the Coast Guard Destroyer Paulding are held responsible by a Naval court of inquiry for the collision that sent the submarine's crew of 40 to death off Provincetown, Mass., last December 17.

In addition the court recommended detachment of Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby as commander of the control force, which includes submarines of the Atlantic fleet.

Brumby was in charge of rescue and salvage operations on the scene an dthe court declared in its findings that he failed to "contribute that superior and intelligent guidance, force and sound judgment expected from an officer of his length of service, experience and position."

The court, composed of Rear Admirals R. H. Jackson as president, Julien L. Latimer, and Captain Joseph V. Ogan, with commander Leslie E. Bratton as judge advocate, declared also that "no known devices or equipment now employed in the navy or owned by commercial organizations, could have saved the lives of those on board the S-4."

The report said the Navy had assembled its best rescue crews as quickly as possible and that the rescue operations were "logical, sought and the weather conditions, played an important part in the findings said, and "rescue" under these conditions was beyond human power."

BLAME COMMANDERS
The court held that "serious blame" was incurred by Lieutenant Commander R. K. Jones, who commanded the S-4 and Lieutenant Commander John H. Baylis, of the Paulding. It declared the submarine failed to make the proper action to avoid the Paulding, while the latter failed to sight and clear the S-4.

The court has been called to meet again to hear a statement by Secretary Mellon, whose department has jurisdiction over the coast guard, which declares the treasury has concluded that Commander Baylis, of the Paulding was not responsible for the collision. Secretary Wilbur directed the court to set forth also the bases for its opinion and recommendations. Thirty-two bodies have been recovered from the S-4. Six more are believed to be in the torpedo room and two are missing. The vessel is expected to be raised during the coming month.

ORDERED TO RETURN
Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, commander of the control force of the Atlantic fleet, is expected to be ordered Thursday to return from Colombia, Panama, to answer charges in connection with the submarine S-4 salvage operations before the recommended Naval court of inquiry.

Home State of Father of Country Recalls Glorious Past on His Birthday

Washington—(AP)—Virginia, which gave George Washington to the nation, recalled her glorious past for President Coolidge Wednesday with a celebration at Alexandria of the first president's 156th birthday anniversary.

The elms-lined streets along which the first president rode on his way to church, were draped in flags and bunting for the occasion and military and patriotic units sought places to parade past a reviewing stand for a salute from President Coolidge.

Practically all of Virginia's officials met Alexandria as their destination and dozens of those of the federal government held their desks in Washington to hold a reception in honor of the first president.

FARMER GOES ON TRIAL FOR BOMBING GIRL

Opening Statements in School Bombing Trial to Be Made Thursday

Ottawa, Ill.—(AP)—The trial of a farmer charged with the bombing of a school house in an effort to kill his sweetheart, Miss Iola Bradford, the teacher, was completed Wednesday morning and the state immediately began its opening statement. A salesman, a farmer, a truck driver and a doctor testified that they saw the farmer, who was charged with the bombing, on the night of the explosion.

Following a conference with the attorneys, Judge Frank Hayes announced court would be adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning when opening statements would be made. It was believed arguments would also be heard at that time as to admissibility of Reed's confession made to the state's attorneys.

The jury is composed of two farmers, two truck drivers, four farmers, a retired business man, a contractor, a salesman and a painter. Selection of the twelve men occupied only about a day.

Iola Bradford, whom the state charges, young Reed tried to kill by placing dynamite in the stove of the school where she taught and she was charged with the bombing of the school. She and Reed, to whom she was engaged have known each other. The teacher is about to become a mother.

BADGER BOOSTERS END 15-DAY TRIP TO SOUTH

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's goodwill tourists are at home. The special train, which in 15 days has carried more than 150 of the state's officials and citizens through 11 southern states, arrived in Madison at 7:15 Wednesday morning.

The returning pilgrims were met at the station by Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman and a small group of Madison citizens. The party was 15 minutes behind schedule from Chicago, due to a stop made at Jacksonville to pick up two passengers. Many of the travelers got in line to transfer to another railroad station where their coaches' trains to their homes in other parts of the state.

The special train left just 10 minutes after noon. The exhibits were knocked down before it got back to Madison, and all were unpacked Wednesday. The crowd started striking canvas at Springfield, Ill.

ISSUE WARRANTS FOR PLUMMER WITNESSES

BURNS RECEIVE PRISON TERMS

Three Men Indicted in Oil Conspiracy Mistrail Will Appeal Cases

Washington—(AP)—Underlying reasons for contempt of court arising out of the Fall-Summit oil conspiracy mistrail, Harry F. Sinclair, his associate, Henry Hays Day, and William L. Burns, Jr., were indicted to the federal courts Wednesday for execution.

With Burns' son, W. Sherman Burns, who was fined $100 for his part in a shadow trial jury as accused head of the conspiracy, they had notice of appeals. Thursday night shortly after Justice Frederick L. Sidgely pronounced sentence in District of Columbia supreme court. They were at Liberty House for their terms, which the law said would be served.

Sinclair, the reality of a man who had been in one court or another for a long time, was sentenced to six months in jail. Day, who hired the jury in Sinclair's behalf, was sentenced to four months and the other Burns received a 12-day term although he had no connection with the shadow trial.

Earlier in the hearing Justice Sidgely had dismissed similar charges against Sheldon Clark, vice president of the Sinclair Refining Co. and C. L. Voth, head of the Burns-Baltimore agency.

Sinclair now faces the prospect of serving nine months in the District of Columbia jail. Previously he was sentenced to three months for contempt for refusing to testify in the state's Teapot Dome inquiry.

OBSTRUCTS JUSTICE
In sentencing the men Justice Sidgely who presided at the mistrail, made the declaration that shadowing of an "unsubstantiated" jury was unlawful and that it tended to obstruct justice therefore found in contempt of court.

"A disastorous thing happened here," he said. "A breakdown in a criminal trial, a breakdown that was clearly due to the action of the defendants. It was a breakdown in the law that was a breakdown in the law."

WISCONSIN BANKERS INJURED IN ACCIDENT

PROSECUTOR CHARGES CHANGED STORY BEAT STATE'S MURDER CASE

Milwaukee Attorney Declares
Chief Witness Told Conflicting Tales

A first degree murder charge against Ben Thomas, Foresto, accused of killing Frank Rogenski,
Oct. 21, 1924, was nulled by Judge
Edgar V. Werner in circuit court here Tuesday afternoon on motion of Roland J. Steinele, Milwaukee, special prosecuting attorney.

Mr. Steinele's motion came as a surprise to the defense and the court spectators. The judge granted the motion immediately and Thomas was dismissed.

"I asked the judge to nolle this case because our chief witness, Stanley Klescewski, a brother-in-law of Thomas, has materially changed his story since the indictment by the grand jury," said Mr. Steinele after court adjourned.

"Klescewski had originally told me,
that on the night Rogenski was found dead, he with Thomas and the dead man, had driven from the farm of Klescewski's father to the village of Armstrong Creek," Steinele said.

"They left the village together and on a lonely road Thomas and Rogenski left the car and Klescewski said
he heard loud words and swearing and then he heard Rogenski scream and Thomas came back to the car alone."

On the stand Klescewski denied he heard Thomas and Rogenski fighting or that he heard Rogenski screaming.

About an hour after Thomas and Klescewski drove away, two Armstrong Creek men driving along the same road ran over the body of Rogenski. They brought the dead man to the village and a post-mortem examination showed he died of a fractured skull.

The state claimed Thomas had killed Rogenski as an aftermath of a drinking party and a previous quarrel. The defense claimed Rogenski was killed when he was run over by the two men later in the evening.

"Practically our whole case was based on Klescewski's story and when he changed it we felt we didn't have sufficient evidence to obtain a conviction," Steinele explained.

The trial had opened Tuesday morning and Klescewski and one other witness had been called.

Surfaced roads throughout the state are in good condition, according to the traveling over them is rough. The report says it is possible to reach any of the large cities of the state, without difficulty by following the hard surfaced roads.

Ground Broken At Valley Forge For Washington Memorial Church

A ten-million dollar church (left) is to rise in memory of George Washington at Valley Forge, where 153 years ago he spent a bitter winter at the head of his Revolutionary troops. The painting (right) of Washington in prayer at Valley Forge is a familiar one. The edifice is sponsored by the Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk (inset), Episcopal rector of the Washington chapel at the same place.

Valley Forge, Pa.—(AP)—Ground was broken today on the sloping hills of Valley Forge for a $10,000,000 Washington Memorial church—a nation's tribute to George Washington and the patriots of the Revolution.

One hundred and fifty years ago
Washington spent his forty-sixth birthday at Valley Forge. Today 1,500 Boy Scouts from surrounding counties assembled on the site of his famous contestation to pay homage to his memory and to take part in the ground-breaking exercises.

Funds for the erection of the church are to be raised by popular subscription by the Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, founder and rector of the Washington Memorial chapel. He has asked that ten million persons contribute one dollar each as a Washington birthday gift. A large sum already has been received.

A 15-acre site, overlooking the Schuylkill river and valley has been purchased for the memorial church, which will have a seating capacity of 5,000. The edifice will be 458 feet long and 100 feet high, with three towers rising 200 feet.

The cornerstone will be laid June 19,
the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the evacuation of Valley Forge by Washington and his army and the twenty-ninth anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the Washington Memorial chapel here. It is hoped the church will be ready for dedication on the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth, February 22, 1932.

A larger church is needed on this historic spot, Dr. Burk said, because the chapel no longer will accommodate the ever-increasing throngs which gather there.

"Only a few of those who come to worship in the chapel can find seats.

Every state has its Sunday at Valley Forge. These state Sundays follow the order of their admission to the Union, beginning with Delaware on the first Sunday of the year.

"The governors are invited to speak or send representatives, irrespective of creed or denomination. Adequate space must be found for the increasing state Sunday congregations. Schools, colleges, patriotic organizations, fraternal orders and business corporations also hold special services at Valley Forge."

"The National Washington Memorial church will be the symbol of the spirit of Valley Forge, which is service through sacrifice."

The memorial chapel called by President Wilson "the shrine of the American people" will be attained for daily use after the church is finished four years from now.

The job of being street and bridge
committee chairman is not an easy
one, as may be verified from Alderman Mike Steinhauer, who now holds
the position.

According to Mr. Steinhauer, citizens of Appleton who have any business whatsoever with matters pertaining to streets or bridges, call him
during the noon hour, the supposition
being that that is the best time to reach him on the telephone as even a
chairman of the street and bridge committee must eat.

In fact so many calls come in, the official relates, that he has found it necessary to change his time of eating from noon to 1 o'clock. "It is nothing unusual for from 15 to 20
calls daily to be made during the noon
hour," he said. "It is getting so I almost have to eat standing at the telephone. Nevertheless, we see that every call is attended to and give the
citizens 100 per cent service."

While Alderman Steinhauer's talk
would sound like he was seeking the
job again, he has called attention to
his speech to the city council a short time ago in which he stated he would not have the job again "if it was handed
to me on a silver platter."

Then too, there are other matters
that must be dealt with diplomatically,
he says. For instance there are large purchases made annually and
care must be observed to distribute the business evenly, all merchants being entitled to a share. Where possible, material is purchased in large quantities in order to get better prices,
thereby saving money for the city.

Lax dealing with equipment just because it happens to belong to the city, is not tolerated by the street and

bridge committee. Since Mr. Steinhauer has become chairman, a careful
check has been kept on all supplies
and monthly reports of everything on hand is made to the mayor and the city council. That includes every bag
of cement, every hammer, shovel and
every quart of oil used in the automobiles.

"It is just a question of putting the thing on a business basis," Mr. Steinhauer declares. "We now have one
man who does nothing but keep tab
on equipment and materials and we find that this has saved the city a large amount of money. The city is badly in need of a tool house, however, as the present one is not a fit

is removed from streets.

Canada is well on the way to becoming the second gold-producing country of the world.

The job of being street and bridge
committee chairman is not an easy
one, as may be verified from Alderman Mike Steinhauer, who now holds
the position.

According to Mr. Steinhauer, citizens of Appleton who have any business whatsoever with matters pertaining to streets or bridges, call him
during the noon hour, the supposition
being that that is the best time to reach him on the telephone as even a
chairman of the street and bridge committee must eat.

In fact so many calls come in, the
official relates, that he has found it
necessary to change his time of eating from noon to 1 o'clock. "It is nothing unusual for from 15 to 20
calls daily to be made during the noon
hour," he said. "It is getting so I
almost have to eat standing at the telephone. Nevertheless, we see that every call is attended to and give the
citizens 100 per cent service."

While Alderman Steinhauer's talk
would sound like he was seeking the
job again, he has called attention to
his speech to the city council a short
time ago in which he stated he would
not have the job again "if it was handed
to me on a silver platter."

Then too, there are other matters
that must be dealt with diplomatically,
he says. For instance there are large purchases made annually and
care must be observed to distribute
the business evenly, all merchants being entitled to a share. Where possible, material is purchased in large
quantities in order to get better prices,
thereby saving money for the city.

Lax dealing with equipment just
because it happens to belong to the
city, is not tolerated by the street and

bridge committee. Since Mr. Steinhauer has become chairman, a careful
check has been kept on all supplies
and monthly reports of everything on
hand is made to the mayor and the city council. That includes every bag
of cement, every hammer, shovel and
every quart of oil used in the automobiles.

"It is just a question of putting the
thing on a business basis," Mr. Steinhauer declares. "We now have one
man who does nothing but keep tab
on equipment and materials and we find that this has saved the city a large amount of money. The city is badly in need of a tool house, however, as the present one is not a fit place to keep good machinery such as the city has."

Street department activities during the last few days have been confined to chopping ice from downtown streets and thawing out catch basins. At the barns, the big sweeper has been completely overhauled and repainted and attention has been turned to one of the tractors and the trucks. Several of the departments employees were to be laid off, but because of the snow storm Wednesday morning probably will be retained on the city payroll until the snow again

is removed from streets.

FIRE CHIEF SAYS BUSINESSMEN SET INSURANCE RATES

McGillan Cites Many Instances in Which Fire Hazards May Be Removed

To a large extent, every business man fixes his own insurance rate and pays for every fire hazard he tolerates, according to George P. McGillan, fire chief. Business men should study the matter of fire hazards and in many instances they will be able to abolish many cases of serious fires, the chief said.

Insurance credits are given by risk companies for inside water protection, approved chemical extinguishers, watchman service, posting "No Smoking" signs, and enforcing no smoking rules, Chief McGillan said, and urged that businessmen make a study of the problem with an eye to helping keep down the number of fires in Appleton and also in preventing personal losses from fires.

Following is a list of hazards which cause increased insurance rates:

Open foundations instead of enclosed.

Chimneys other than brick, built on brackets, metal or sewer pipe flues passing through floors, roofs, attics or other concealed spaces.

Unsafe installation of the heating plant.

Unsafe lighting installation.

Shingle roofs instead of metal, slate, tile or approved composition.

Ceilings or partitions of paper board, canvas or other flimsy, combustible materials.

Wood lath and plaster partitions between different occupancies instead of incombustible partitions.

Wooden porches, cornices, roof houses or other combustible attachments to masonry buildings.

Non-standard sky lights.

Storage of excessive quantities of ammunition and other explosives.

Storage of excessive quantities of gasoline or other explosive liquid or keeping the same in unapproved containers.

The use of such liquids for washing or cleaning indoors.

Carrying on certain manufacturing processes, such as woodworking, painting, paint spraying, etc., under unsafe conditions.

Use of flammable moving picture films outside of standard booth.

General untidiness and carelessness.

Storage of waste paper.

Oily waste and rags not kept in standard, self-closing, metal waste cans.

EARLY REGISTRATION MAKES VOTING EASIER

Register Now and Save Trouble and Delay at Polls, Williams Warns

Appleton voters must register by Tuesday, March 6, or go through the procedure at the polls on primary election day, according to E. L. Williams, city clerk. If a voter's right to cast his ballot is challenged during the primaries he will have to be sworn in as a voter besides registering, Mr. Williams said.

Registration closes several days before the primary election, Tuesday, March 13, to enable clerks to file registration cards. The law requires that the white cards go to the polling precincts and be recorded in order of street number while the yellow ones are kept on file in the city hall. A list of the cards as they are recorded in alphabetical order will also be furnished the precincts.

After the primary election the city clerk will again check the cards, recording those which were filled out during the election and file them for the final election in April. The cards will also have to be checked against deaths and removals from the city during the period from the date of the primary election to the final election.

Workmen's clothing not in metal lockers.

No drip pans under bearings.

Running a gasoline engine in building.

Running incubators or brooders in building.

Storage of other dangerous substances.

Correction of these hazards removes the charge.

MENASHA MAYOR OUT OF RACE THIS YEAR, CITY COUNCIL TOLD

N. G. Remmel Says 22 Years of Service to City Long Enough for Him

Menasha—Mayor N. G. Remmel definitely announced at the council meeting Tuesday night that he was not a candidate for mayor or any other office at the coming election. He made the statement while replying to a communication which appeared in a local paper under the signature of the two local assessors. He made the announcement, he said, so the people could not say he was talking politics. He said he has given 22 years service to the city and feels that it is time to give someone else a chance. He felt it his duty to make the announcement at this time so as not to hold back other candidates from entering the field, he said.

Bids were opened for a new truck for the streets department and the contract was awarded to the White Truck company for $2,900. There were nine bids in all. A contract also was placed with the Bi-Lateral Hose company for 1,000 feet of hose for the fire department at $1.40 per foot. Bids were submitted by five firms.

A letter was read from the state highway commission announcing that a hearing would be held in Menasha on March 26 for the purpose of securing a permit to build the proposed new Tayco-st bridge, the former permit granted two years ago having expired. The commission will be granted the use of the city hall. A letter from Madison also was read to the effect that a hearing on electric rates will be held in that city on Feb. 23 and 24 and, upon motion, Mayor Remmel appointed J. H. Kuester, superintendent of water and light, and John Jedwabny, Jr., city clerk, to attend.

A communication from Menasha Paper Mills company asking that it be given consideration in the matter of taxes was read by the mayor. The company is now employing 75 men, according to the letter which was signed by N. E. Brokaw, Mrs. M. Tennesen asked for a rebate of taxes on her property owing to an error on assessment. The matter was referred to the finance committee and to the city attorney.

Mayor Remmel said there were several things he wanted to take up as one of them related to the assessment of the Central Paper company. With an increase of assessment from $27,000 to $33,470 last year, the company failed to get before the board of review. The law provides that the board of review shall correct assessment errors, the mayor said.

Alderman Fehrenkrug inquired about the law concerning a full assessment of the matter being related to the assessment. He was informed by City Attorney Silas Spengler as to the different methods a city should pursue in order to get one but was not certain that enough time remained before election to get the law changed this year. The matter was referred to the judiciary and city attorney.

Upon motion of Alderman Small, the city attorney was instructed to notify the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company to look after its crossing at Lawson sidetrack which has a surplus of water. The matter was referred to the two aldermen of that part of the city. Alderman Brezinski called attention to the dangerous crossing at Third and Tayco-sts and the city attorney was instructed to notify the Soo line and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road to look after it.

"Another thing I want to bring up," said Alderman Brezinski, "is the complaints about the bus line. I have been riding on the busses for a while and it is something terrible. Most busses seat 25 and frequently 40 persons are crowded into them. I believe that condition is due just because the company has different fares for the interurban cars and the busses. I believe if they had only one fare for both, some of the trouble would be eliminated."

"We ought to try to get a five cent fare on the interurban cars as well as the busses. I believe we ought to get more busses. I make a motion that the mayor appoint a committee to look up the overloading of busses." The city attorney was authorized to write to the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company and request that it send a representative to a meeting to be held at the municipal offices to take up the matter.

Another subject brought up by Alderman Brezinski was the payment of electric light bills. He said he had numerous complaints from the owners of houses of tenants letting their electric light bills run for three or four months and then move elsewhere without making a settlement. The property owner is then held responsible for the bill, he said, and suggested that the bills be not permitted to run more than two months at most. The mayor informed him that was a matter in the hands of the superintendent of water and light and his committee.

The 60 by 90 gymnasium is a distinct unit attached to the school. When the gym is being used it can be entirely shut off from the rest of the building and it is so fitted that physical education classes, basketball games, plays and entertainments can be held in it. A portable stage with proper lighting and curtains is being made. Bleachers, made by the manual training department, together with steel folding chairs, provide seats for over 700 people.

The building was erected at a contract price of approximately $128,000, including the gym. Charles Clark Reynolds, Green Bay, was the architect and the Mads Madsen company, Minneapolis, were the contractors.

The building will contain grades one to six, a kindergarten and an opportunity room, thus giving more room for classes in the high school building.

THE STORY THUS FAR
The story is told in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '80's when a fight was being waged for the opening of Oklahoma to settlement. Chief characters are:
...TONY HARRISON, orphaned at 13 when his father was shot in a poker game;
...PAWNEE BILL, adventurer, teacher, Indian interpreter, showman;
...JOE CRAIG, who takes Tony to the Bar K ranch to live;
...TITUS MOORE, owner of the Bar K brand;
...RITA, his daughter, with whom Tony later falls in love.
Moore is one of the chief enemies of the movement to open Oklahoma. DAVID PAYNE, leader of the "Boomers," dies and Tony in his loyalty to Moore is troubled because of his sympathy for Payne's cause. He tries to force his hopeless love for Rita but is unable to keep from declaring his love and when Rita admits she is engaged to another he disappears.
Pawnee Bill organizes his own show. Tony goes with it. It fails and Pawnee Bill is persuaded by the city of Wichita to go there and lead the Boomers into Oklahoma. On April 22, 1889, the gun is fired that sends 50,000 homeseekers scrambling over the border in a wild rush. Tony rides on to Guthrie which in one day is springing from nothing to a city of 8,000. There he accidentally gets into the hardware business.
Mrs. Moore meanwhile has died and in Washington Titus Moore and Rita board a train to go back to the Bar K.

CHAPTER XLV
The train sped on and neither of them spoke for a long time, although Titus Moore stole an occasional furtive look at his daughter and appeared several times to be on the point of asking a question.
He said presently, "One more thing about Tony Harrison before we drop the subject. Did you know that I had it in mind for a long time to adopt him?"
Rita looked startled. "Adopt him?"
He nodded. "I'd always wanted a boy—not that I'm dissatisfied with my daughter," he added with a smile, "but to just sort of round things out. It would have been right funny, wouldn't it—having Tony Harrison for a brother?"
She gazed out the window. "Why did you change your mind?" she asked without turning around.
"I didn't," he said simply. "Tony just up and ran away when I was getting ready to talk it over with him." "Tony never have consented," she said quickly.
"I'm afraid he wouldn't," Titus Moore acknowledged. "I've been right puzzled at times trying to figure out what he would have done about mixing himself up with the opening if he had been taking into the Moore family."
Rita said nothing more but continued to stare at the fitting landscape. Her father sighed and was silent with her. Between them they shared a common thought—that but for the kindness of circumstances things would have turned out differently and more happily.
Neither of them mentioned Tony Harrison's name again until, once more at the Bar K ranch, the subject was brought up by Joe Craig.
"I've heard from him just once," Craig said worriedly. "That was when he wrote to say how bad he felt about Mrs. Moore's death. I know he was in the rush, but where he is now the Lord only knows."
He added darkly that many reports of violence had come out of Oklahoma since the opening. "There's been an awful lot of shootings. I'm wondering..."
Rita Moore went to bed that night with fear in her heart.
But in Guthrie the subject of their talk continued to get up with the dawn, breakfast leisurely and spend his days in a way that no longer seemed strange to him.
Of an evening he found it pleasant to stroll through the streets of Guthrie and smoke a cigar. There were many who hailed him as he passed—shopkeepers, the hotel proprietor, the president of the bank, where a swelling account testified to the progress being made by the firm of Perkins and Harrison.
Occasionally he dropped in at a gambling hall. But gone was the old intensity with which he had plunged in the days when gambling had meant temporary escape from fierce, unquenchable longings. He played only for the mild amusement that poker afforded, and the amiable companionship of men he liked.

A strange peace had descended on him—the peace that comes with days profitably spent. There were things but they lay in the back ground of his mind, faintly smoldering. Rita was but a painful memory; she would be married; that chapter was forever closed. There was still the resolve to run up some day to the Bar K and see Joe Craig—some day when he should be less busy. He often thought of writing to Craig, but preferred to think of the other's face when he should tell him that he was a business man on the road to prosperity.
There rode into Guthrie one day and put up at the hotel, a dark skinned man with a livid scar traversing one side of his face from eye to chin. His hair, the clerk noted as he removed his hat, was short and coal-black and slick with oil. He wore a short mustache and a goatee, and his eyes, which one expected to be dark, were gray and narrowed.
He announced to the clerk that he had come to Guthrie to "look around." He was thinking, he said, of establishing himself in some sort of business if the town's prospects looked as favorable as reports had indicated.
Tony Harrison, walking into the bank later in the day to deposit some money, passed the stranger coming out. The man nodded briefly and went on and Harrison was vaguely disturbed by the notion that somewhere he had seen that face before.
"The man that just went out looks familiar," he said to the cashier. "Have I seen him before?"
"Can't tell you. He's a stranger here. Introduced himself as Howard Forbes, from Chicago. Said he had some capital to invest in Guthrie if the town looked good to him. And he talked like a man who was thinking somewhat of locating here. He seemed to be real interested in the bank's affairs, on the ground that a bank's prosperity was a pretty good gauge of the prosperity of the community."
"Reasonable enough," said Harrison. "I suppose there's a lot of people coming in and making the same sort of inquiries."
"Plenty of them."
"Funny—for a minute or two I thought I'd seen him somewhere before. Guess I must have been mistaken, though. Awful lot 'ag scar' he's carrying around, isn't it?"
"Terrible," the banker admitted. "Just about ruins his looks."
Harrison left the bank a few minutes later and dismissed the stranger from his mind. Guthrie was a place where one encountered all manner of men. If Forbes was thinking of locating there, he was no different from hundreds of others who were awake to the town's opportunities.
With Fred Perkins he turned his attention to the building of an addition to the store and a shed for their lumber. Young Freddy Perkins, who appeared to inherit his father's aptitude for figures, did the bookkeeping, and the balance sheets were such as to cause Tony Harrison to wonder at the good fortune he had stumbled upon.
"We won't have to slow up for quite a while," the elder Perkins predicted. "Folks won't stop building till there's

A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of poisonous matter that has coated the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels" but what is the best way to CLEANSE them?

The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called CASCARA. The Indians used to chew this bark—and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system, best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, of anything yet disclosed. For many reasons:

First of all, there is no HABIT formed from cascara. The bowels are not weakened, but strengthened by its occasional use. The occasions when one needs this aid grow less and less. Its influence is long-lasting. You don't find yourself worse bound-up the day following. You do find the bowels more inclined to move of their own volition. The candy cascara that every drugstore always has in stock is the ideal form of cascara.

THE FIRST PRESIDENT

Time always smooths out the furrows of care and discord. With the near approach of the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth we have become too prone to treat him as a vision, as partaking of the qualities of legendary things. Modern books though have shocked some by showing that Washington not only owned slaves, but at times cussed and drank rum and was otherwise human.

Nothing approaching an appreciation of his services can be realized without an understanding of his problems and difficulties. He was a man of wealth, perhaps the wealthiest for his time, with the exception of Theodore Roosevelt, who has ever served as president. He was personally shy, not an effective speaker by any means. How often do the people make too much of those who talk and too little of those who merely think and work? When he accepted the command of the continental army he wrote his wife: "I assure you in the most solemn manner that so far from seeking this appointment I have used every endeavor in my power to avoid it from a consciousness of its being a trust too great for my capacity."

Upon his acceptance however his real work and his great career began. He had accepted the command of an army but, in fact, there was no army. He found a disordered mob without uniforms, weapons, means or food, with incompetent officers consumed by colonial jealousies and self-consciousness. And with this it was expected that he was to defeat the armies of the most powerful nation in the world. His first evidence of military genius was to so place, control and discipline his men as to compel the evacuation of Boston by General Howe. Washington immediately divined that Howe would strike next at New York and it took him but a short time to determine that the latter city was so placed as to be impossible to hold against an enemy that controlled the water; but there was the congress to deal with and congress ordered him to hold New York.

There he made his first mistake, one that he never made again. He yielded to popular demand and tried to hold a position that he knew was militarily impossible to defend. When he had to yield to New York and retreat through New Jersey the revolution almost went to pieces through a lack of confidence of the people and a failure to understand that a congress of men, however gifted, should never be permitted to run an army. People love brilliant victories. Congress wanted "a short and violent war." Washington alone seemed to realize that efforts aimed at such purposes meant certain failure. He knew that the only way to victory against a trained army was to stave off defeat until his own army became stronger and more experienced, that the way to victory lay through tiring out his opponents who fought at the great disadvantage of three thousand miles from their principal base of supplies and in a hostile country. Thereafter through many weary months of dark foreboding he resolutely refused to give battle until he could do so to advantage. And then by a brilliant maneuver he crossed the Delaware in inky darkness and floating ice, captured the Hessians at Trenton and won a glorious victory at Princeton. Then, even with congress confidence in his ability was assured, but there were many years of trial and tribulation and stormy warfare ahead.

With confidence in Washington the congress was wise enough to make him a practical dictator. What war has ever been won against any sort of reasonable odds without a practical dictatorship? An army is one thing that can never succeed along democratic lines. Authority must exist with the attribute of immediate obedience. Plans must be carefully laid and faithfully executed. Thinking must be done by the superiors and fulfillment by the men and officers under their command and without hesitation.

Politics belongs in an army about as much as Paris green in food.

While Washington's trials were severest with the enemy there was also great discontent and complaint in his own army. John Adams, afterwards president, following a visit to the army wrote: "I am wearied to death with the wrangles between military officers high and low. They quarrel like cats and dogs. They worry one another like mastiffs, scrambling for rank and pay like apes for nuts." A man of less patience and character than Washington would gladly have given up the burdens and responsibilities as well as the ingratitude of his position. But in these darkest hours he declared, "I could offer myself a willing sacrifice to the butchering enemy, provided that would contribute to the people's case." How singularly comparable to Lincoln's absence of pride when he said, "I would hold McClellan's horse if it would bring us victories."

It was not merely the ultimate victory that made Washington's name enduring as a great military commander but because a careful study of all his plans and campaigns has brought from military experts the highest praise for his genius. It is not going too far to say that without Washington or a man of similar qualities to lead the colonial cause, the Revolution would have been a flat failure. The impartial historian has said of his characteristics:

"If we seek an explanation, it was not his great mind, for Franklin's was greater; not his force, energy or ingenuity, for Arnold surpassed him in these qualities; not his military experience, for Charles Lee's was far more extensive; but it was the strength of character which day by day won the love of his soldiers and the perfect confidence of his countrymen, the absence of a mean ambition, the one desire of serving well his country and his fellow men, the faithfulness that could not be driven from its task through jealousy or resentment—these were the traits that gave him a unique and solitary place among the world's heroes."

With the conclusion of peace it was Washington's earnest desire to become again "a private citizen on the banks of the Potomac free from the bustle of a camp and the busy scenes of public life," planning as he said to "move gently down the stream of time until I sleep with my fathers." No one realized better than he that "the pomp of heraldry and the boast of power" do not bring happiness. No one more than he wanted a simple life but it was not to be, and despite his desire he was elected to the presidency, going to the seat of government with feelings he described "not unlike those of a culprit who is going to the place of execution."

His success as president through all the difficulties of new and untrodden ground indicate that if rightly understood by the people the qualities that go to make a great military leader go likewise to make a great ruler. First of all he chose talent for positions of trust and gathered around himself and in his cabinet men like Hamilton, Jefferson, Randolph and Knox. But Washington did not serve his eight years as president without feeling the bitterness and ingratitude of unpopularity. Politics goes to make wrath, and towards some of his policies he was so roundly abused that he felt, he said, like "Nero; a notorious defaulter or even a common pickpocket."

He had served the public for nearly twenty-five years in one capacity or another but always as a leader. He had given up the mild concerns of ordinary life, which he preferred, for the trials and abuses of public life and solely through a sense of duty.

The singular thing of his career is that he never did anything for applause. Those who react quickly to the plaudits of the multitude are most often trying to do something for applause. Things done for applause are seldom done right, are rarely really beneficial or constructive. Courting popularity is an extremely dangerous business but more dangerous to the people than to anyone else. Doing the right "as it is given one to see the right," and in spite of its unpopularity, may be properly said to be the true quality of statesmanship.

Health Talks

Notes Physician and Author
Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

THE DRY REFERENDUM

From Glasgow, Walter R. P. writes:
I have put your treatment to prevent seasickness to the test, on the roughest voyage the "Caledonia" ever made, and it was an absolute success.

"I have crossed the English channel eight times, the Irish sea twice, and now the Atlantic twice. Until this last voyage every trip was miserable. Although I never was actually sick, I was always 'just almost,' and it was misery."

"This trip I never had the slightest suggestion of it, so I am holding on to your method of treatment to help anyone I meet who is going over—maybe it will land them in America Brady followers."

"I am glad to be home again, and I hope I will never be sorry to leave Scotland again, but I certainly am sorry to have to say goodbye to your articles."

I wish it were possible for us to arrange some scheme by which our friend might borrow the paper from a neighbor and continue to enjoy my articles, but this is obviously impossible in Scotland.

Once in a long while such a report comes in. I am not proud of it. I do not boast of the success of my method of preventing seasickness. I merely present the lone testimonial, call attention to the extraordinary fact that it comes unsolicited, from Scotland, and leave it to the reader who contemplates a voyage to decide for himself whether my method is worth trying. I'll go further than that. I'll print here all of the method I dare entrust to the printing machine. The method is useful against both seasickness and carsickness.

1. Begin two days before the journey and continue for the first two days of the journey, taking each morning on rising half a bottle of solution of citrate of magnesia.

2. Morning, noon, and night, throughout the journey, and preferably an hour apart from medicine, take internally a very small dose of belladonna or of its active principle, tropin. I dare not attempt to specify the dose here.

3. Before boarding or immediately on boarding boat or car place in each ear canal a cone of gauze, lightly but not tightly packed in, to dull all sounds. Wear these sound deadeners the first two days of the journey.

I have sent the full details of the method of preventing seasickness or car sickness to a great many correspondents who asked for such advice. Once in a long while, as I said, some one tells me how successful the treatment proved. But the great majority who display interest in my method are never heard of again.

Now I'm going to run the risk of getting some mighty bad news. I'm going to ask for a referendum on this seasickness thing. But thinking of this reminds me of another big question I'd like to include in the referendum. That is the bed wetting habit. I have sent out to several parents who requested instructions for the correction of this habit. Now and again some one casually mentions, when writing for something else, that my method proved effective in remedying the bed wetting trouble. But I appeal to readers for a referendum on the question. Have you followed my advice in the correction of the bed wetting habit, and if so, did the regimen I suggested accomplish the purpose? I'd give the details of this here if I could. If you have a child with this trouble, tell me, and I'll mail the instructions to you—in the stamped addressed envelope you provide.

But I now call upon all readers with experience to report what results they have obtained from (a) my method of preventing seasickness, or (b) my method of correcting the bed wetting habit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Reputable Physician Speaks

A very reputable physician says one will certainly catch cold by getting heated up, sweating, and then exposing the body to cold air without extra clothing. Your teachings about "cure" are not consistent with this. (J. B.)

Answer—But the reputable physician is playing with a joker. If we can trap him into a definition of the "cold" one will certainly catch that way. I'll try it out on the poor goof who runs this column. But the great trouble with the reputable physicians is that of this here. If I could, if you have a child to define what they are talking about. They know perfectly well that as soon as they define it, they are all through with the argument. They much prefer to let it go along as it is, so that anything you happen to have after the alleged "exposure" will serve to bolster up their ridiculous position. In all the endowed research, all the subsidized intensive study, and all the $8 a column bunk the self styled medical scientists have these last few years about the "common cold," there is no attempt on the part of physician, scientist, laboratory man or health authority to define the entity he has in mind when he says "common cold." No one dares to formulate a definition. Let any doctor or health authority of standing venture to define the alleged "common cold" and I'll make a monkey of him or an ass of himself. There just isn't any such thing.

Should Mothers Chew Tobacco?

Is it all right for an expectant mother to smoke cigarettes? Is it harmful to the unborn? (W. F.)

Answer—I believe it is harmful to the unborn and tends to impair the woman's efficiency in bearing and nursing the baby. Some physicians sanction smoking by the expectant or nursing mother, however.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

WHEN A BRIDGE COLLAPSED

Suppose you read in your favorite newspaper that a bridge had collapsed and that five persons had been killed. This would not be an extraordinary item. If a hundred or five hundred had been killed it would be a big story. Or if among the five victims there was a well known financier or a famous politician or a noted writer, it would also be a big story, calling for a couple of columns of type per page and a scarehead. But suppose all those five were unimportant, people. You would idly read the half dozen or dozen lines and an hour later you would probably have forgotten completely that you had read them.

Suppose further this bridge that collapsed was in South America, the mere chance of this being reported in the newspapers would be almost nil. But if it was, for of us would be stirred by it for longer than it takes to read a few lines of type. Much more dramatic things are being reported every day in every newspaper in the land that leave us completely cold.

Yet an unimportant little incident no more dramatic than the collapse of such a supposed bridge in faraway Lima, Peru, was the beginning of a very beautiful book published quite recently without any blowing of trumpets. It is in fact one of those books one hardly sees advertised. It seems to have too much inner dignity for the crudity of the advertising method. I came on it by mere chance and it was all the greater adventure for that very fact. That quite a few others have also discovered it is shown by the fact that during the last two months of 1927 it went through six editions.

The book is called "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" and it is by Thornton Wilder. If you want something that is outstanding for sheer beauty, poetry, in prose form, read this unpretentious volume.

This is the idea back of it: In Lima, Peru, there was a bridge over a deep gorge, a footbridge used by the people of the city for a long, long time. At a certain hour on a certain day something gave way while five persons were crossing it. They were dashed down upon the rocks below and were killed. One was a grotesque old woman called the Marquessa De Montemayor. Another was a little orphan girl, her companion, named Pepita. A third was a founding, a young fellow of about twenty, named Estaban. A fourth was a dirty old vagabond who had extravagant dreams of greatness, who was known in Lima as "Uncle Pio." And finally there was a sickly little boy named Don Jaime.

Just a miscellaneous group of unimportant persons who happened to be on the bridge when it happened to collapse and were dashed to their death on the rocks below. What could there be in such an episode to make it the subject of a beautiful book? Where is the unity in it, the meaning of it?

Ninety-nine writers out of a hundred would have given up in despair. It would not be a subject at all, mere odds and ends. But a real poet often finds his best material among the things that have been rejected by others. For purposes of poetry the richest treasures are usually not found in flower-sprinkled meadows but in slag-heaps.

It occurred to Thornton Wilder to create a half-scientific, half-mystic priest who would be troubled by the meaning of this sudden snuffing out of five lives. He cannot become reconciled to the idea that it is all blind chance; that would involve the idea that the whole universe is all blind chance. But he is scientific enough to see that to escape that dilemma he must have facts on which to build up his structure of faith in the theory that this tragedy, and the whole universe, is ordered and not the sport of chance.

So he sets about patiently learning all the facts about the lives of the five unimportant persons who were killed, and that makes the book. Five tragic stories made one story by this device of the collapse of a bridge.

Does the priest or the author come to a clear answer to this question that has vexed philosophers in all ages? You will have to read the book to find out. It is too lovely a thing to be reproduced in a sentence. Moreover, the answer is not important. The poetry of the book's the thing.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

DOCTOR STUDIES TEETH OF AFRICAN NATIVES

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

There is a common superstition that negroes and the savage tribes of Africa invariably have sound, healthy teeth, and this in spite of the fact that they pay no special attention to their diet or to the care of the teeth. Now Dr. A. T. Till provides the results of an investigation into the dental condition of children in South Swaziland in Africa. Only 25 per cent of the children were found to be free from carious teeth.

The diets of these children were based principally on maize. Milk, butter and eggs were seldom eaten. Meat was taken only irregularly and then in large amounts. The nursing women of the tribe take no milk, because of a superstition that the drinking of milk prevents the mother from being able to nurse her child. An exactly contrary opinion is held by most white mothers.

In South Swaziland the mother nurses her baby from 18 to 24 months, and begins to feed it sour meal-meal porridge from an early age as two or three weeks.

Today the scientific evidence available indicates that the pregnant mother should have diet rich in vitamins and calcifying substances. The diets of the African mothers and children were poor in vitamins and high in cereals, which is full of anti-calcifying substance.

On the other hand the African children have a great deal of sunshine, which aids the formation of vitamins in their bodies. They wear little clothing and the skin is constantly exposed freely to sun's rays.

It is customary among the tribes of South Swaziland to rinse the mouths with water after meals, rubbing the teeth and gums with the fingers. Children are given stones and bones to bite on as exercises for the teeth and gums. Undoubtedly the presence of caries in the children and the early decay of many teeth are due to the bad diets that pregnant mothers and the children indulge in.

Dr. Till noted that in every case where a child had no decaying teeth, it was also free from signs of infected tonsils, adenoids or rickets. Neither was there any record that it had ever suffered rheumatic symptoms. The heights and weights of all of the children studied were noted and the children with decaying teeth were found under weight in more instances than those free from this disturbance.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Suss

New York—A vast fortune in jewels is left by guests in the hotel rooms of Manhattan each year.

And pretty close to 90 per cent of it gets back to its owners. A million dollars in gems alone found their way to the various property clerks. And there was a similar amount in stocks, bonds and actual cash. One visitor from a middle west city left a $25,000 string of pearls and a business man from Pennsylvania left $50,000 worth of negotiable bonds in a wallet.

Hotel men tell me that the rush of getting about the city and of catching trains is to blame for the great percentage of such breaches of memory. There is something about New York's hectic swirl that soon produces absent-mindedness. A psychologist once told me that there are more absent-minded men in New York than in most of the nation put together. There are too many things on their minds.

Most Manhattanites forget names; and an almost equal number forget faces. The contacts with new faces and new names come too fast for the average memory to record. Many of the most absent-minded find their way to the highest places, in spite of all the advertising to the contrary.

Dwight Morrow, our widely acclaimed new ambassador to Mexico, had the reputation of being the most absent-minded man on Wall Street, yet he became a partner in the Morgan firm. The story is told of how one day he rang for his secretary. By the time the young man had arrived, he found Morrow engrossed with some papers on his desk. The secretary stood for a moment and then asked Morrow what he wanted.

"What are you doing there?" Morrow asked.

"You rang for me, sir. I thought perhaps—"

"Now did I?" asked Morrow. "What back in ten minutes and remind me suppose I wanted you for? Well, come back in ten minutes and remind me that I want you again, will you, please."

There is still another of how Morrow found himself on the way to Philadelphia one afternoon. Arriving there he couldn't remember what he came for. He got on the phone and called his wife in New York. She told him he was to make a speech at a big dinner that night, and then he recalled his engagement.

Pressure of too many things to do gets many of the New Yorkers that way. Concentration on big deals and big problems is another responsible factor. Men forget all but the immediate things before their minds. It is told of a certain important business man that his wife stepped into his office unexpectedly and waited for a moment, rather than disturb him. When the man looked from his papers and saw her standing there he inquired: "Is dinner nearly ready?"

The hour was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Checking stands in the Times Square belt hold articles for many weeks, sometimes because people forget where they left their parcels. The big department stores report similar experiences. One woman, claiming a package she had laid aside, said that she suddenly had recalled the store she bought it in by recognizing the face of an elevator man.

customers, as distinguished from the novelty the freak, or the specialty.

Q. Is the profession of engineers open to women? V. G.

A. As yet women have been attracted to the study of engineering in only small numbers. Of the 41 women technical engineers reported in a recent United States Census, 18 were civil engineers, 12 electrical engineers, and 11 mechanical engineers.

Q. How does one acquire an oryster farm? W. F.

A. A man may rent, lease, or buy an oryster farm from the state much the same as he would a dry land farm. The boundaries are plain and definite, even though the crop lies from 20 to 100 feet below the surface of the water.

Q. In navigation what does the term oblique referring imply? N. T. K.

A. This refers to the movement of a vessel when she sails upon a course making an oblique angle with the meridian. The use of the term is rare.

CHARMINGLY SIMPLE
Smart simplicity is expressed in alluring model for the women who insist on a youthful appearance. It is charmingly lovely interpreted in novelty silk crepe in interesting color scheme, with waistline marked with a narrow belt of soft canton faille crepe ribbon in the predominating color of the fabric. It will prove economical too, for it can be worn all through the Spring.

Black chiffon velvet self trimmed, navy blue silk crepe with matching suede belt with bright buck tan anora jersey, beige georgette crepe, featherweight tweed in diagonal weave, Chanel blue crepe Rom, soft green crepe and novelty woolen or silk crepe in new border pattern, are also appropriate and extremely smart, for Style No. 3184.

It is surprisingly easy to make! The effective yoke is formed by cutting in from armholes and underarm edges, the lower edge of which is gathered and joined to upper edge. The shirring which creates snug hipline is made in much the same manner—simply cut along perforated line, and shirred and joined to upper edge. The dress is then ready to be seamed at sides and shoulders and sleeves set into armholes. Note the lower edge of skirt is straight, making it suitable for new border materials. Pattern can be had in 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure and requires but 3 1/2 yards of 40-inch material to make it for the 36-inch size. An elegant dress at a comparatively small outlay. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly.

TRUST YOUR PARENTS MARY

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON.
WHEN boys or girls get into serious trouble it happens almost invariably that when they seek help if they seek it at all, it is from people other than their parents. They will go to the nearest stranger and not always an honorable stranger at that, rather than let their parents know they need assistance.

Why is it? Surely children know that parents who have sacrificed and worked for them and have helped them out of all sorts of childish scrapes, won't go back on them in time of more serious need.

It may be because they feel they have broken trust and cannot face the strict they have brought to their parents. On the other hand, it may be actual fear of punishment. One or both parents may be of the intolerant type that will not permit any lapse of discipline and whose love for boy or girl will not stand in the way of instant chastisement.

But I am inclined to think that this kind of parent is on the wane. The father is no longer the high priest who acts as judge, jury and executioner to his family.

What I am still more inclined to think is that parents say, "You know, George, or Mary, we trust you completely," without adding "and we want you to trust us. Don't you know that in all the earth we are the best friends you have? No matter what happens, come to us first."

Fathers and mothers have a right to expect discipline and reasonable obedience. But that is not enough. They have a right to their children's confidence and they themselves will have to see that it is put there by their own actions. It won't come of itself.

Another thing that young people should understand. If they are in trouble their parents may be stern and exact punishment. But even so, they will be kinder and more understanding than an unforgiving world. The world at large doesn't do much for people who have made a mess of things, young though they may be.

Boys and girls, big and little, your parents are the best friends you ever will have. Talk to them and learn to go to them with your troubles. Don't go to strangers. That's the greatest crime of all. Nothing can distress your parents like this.

Woman Judge Gives Reasons Why Women Transgress, Lack Courage---Patience

By NEA Service
LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Women judges, like women doctors, lawyers, merchants and chiefs, are not just freaks of the times but American fixtures, in the personal opinion of one of them, Judge Georgia Bullock.

Judge Bullock, a bobbed-hair grandmother in her early 40's, is the first of her sex to grace the bench of a California court. As to her success, she has never had a reversal of judgment.

LIKE WOMAN'S JUDGMENT
"Women offenders against the law are glad to appear before a woman judge," she says. "Though they have a right to ask to be heard in other courts, they seldom, if ever, exercise it."

But—Judge Bullock has her troubles teaching women offenders how to address "Her Honor."

"The hardest job of my three years on the bench has been to persuade women prisoners that 'Dearie' is not the correct way to address the court," she says.

"I correct them again and again but they just cannot seem to help getting familiar and out comes the 'Dearie' again."

STILL KINDLY, UNDERSTANDING
Years of studying the human family at close range leaves Judge Bullock still kindly and understanding. She feels "there's a reason" for every misdemeanor.

"Wrong environment, lack of education, unkindness, poverty, the supremacy of physical appetites, the tendency of human nature to seek temporary relief from responsibility or trouble—these are just some of the causes of the degradation and disaster in the world today," she alibis the defendants who appear before her.

"Women's lack of courage and patience to carry on in the face of difficulty is their own worst undoing," she continues. "Trivialities are often mountains to the feminine mind which indirectly lead to disastrous consequences."

"For instance, a woman quarrels with her husband. Blue, unhappy, she goes out and buys 10 cents worth of veronal, enough to cause complete mental irresponsibility."

"Later, she is found in the gutter. Four days to sober her up. She remembers nothing that happened to her. She is then a fit subject for the probation workers and social service reformers."

LACKED COURAGE AND PATIENCE
"Why all this useless tobogganing?—she wanted to forget! She had not the courage or patience to meet the situation and work it out."

Judge Bullock is as constructive as she is generous. Salvaging offenders is more important than bringing the law down on them, in her mind.

"Love of humanity is the greatest agent in bringing the wayward back to higher paths," is her firm belief. She insists that the old-fashioned idea that we are all brothers still works. Early home training she stresses as most important.

"I don't believe that any normal human being, when he or she has been brought up in proper environment and given the necessities of life, will find the way to a court; exceptions to the rule admitted of course," she says.

As to the effect the court, with its dreary cross-section of the dregs of life, has upon women judges, Judge Bullock cites her own case:

"The outstanding result of this chapter of my public service is a finer realization of the kindness of people. It is in all of them, though buried deep in some. But with patience, it can be found. It is an encircling experience."

Judge Bullock... bobbed, understanding, constructive.

THE GOOD OUR RADIOS, CARS, PHONES DO NOW

It is interesting to note how every great invention is found worthy only to the extent that it means anything to human relationships. The airplane has saved life. Therefore it is good. The automobile has saved even more lives he could have saved if his horse. He will tell you of the hundreds of lives he could have saved if his horse and buggy hadn't gotten him there too late. The radio sweetens the life of the maimed and the old. The telephone tightens up human contacts. The radiophone bridges the gap between people on two continents, and so it goes. Big business is important, yes. But the other thing makes big business.

BEAUTY HOW AND WHY

HAIR-WAVE ECONOMY
Ann Alysia
BY ANN ALYSIA
HELEN, who has hair of lovely blonde color, likes the finger wave as a good style for her, but she can hardly afford many visits to the beauty shop. She is very clever herself in arranging these waves in a most becoming way, but she does not know how to set the curls so that they will last more than a few hours at a time.

The secret of lasting waves lies in the application of the fixing or curling fluid used after the hair has been thoroughly shampooed, and dried and remoistened in preparation for adjusting the hair in finger wave. At this point the hair should be abundantly wet with a mucilaginous preparation made from flaxseed, quince seed, gum tragacanth, or gum acacia.

After the mucilaginous preparation has been well worked into the hair, the wave is placed by means of comb and the operator's finger, pinned in place by hair pins, fastened securely under a string net, and allowed to dry slowly. The last step is to gently comb or brush out the fixing medium.

NEXT: Make your own cutting and waving fluids.

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN
Cherry had not been out of the house five minutes Wednesday morning when Nils Jonson's telephone call came. During breakfast, and those last hurried minutes while Cherry had been giving Hope her nine o'clock bottle, Faith had prayed that the call would come while Cherry was still there.

But fate was ironic. Five minutes after Cherry had left the house, tight-lipped and pale with the disappointment that the mail had again brought her, the telephone rang long and insistently, proclaiming the fact that it was "long distance" calling.

"Nils speaking, Faith," the rich voice came startlingly clear. "I'm in Darrow. I'll be tied up here all day on business, but I'd like to drop in this evening, if I may."

"Can't you come for dinner?" Faith asked hopefully. Cherry was not to leave for Mariboro until half past eight.

"I'll make it if I can, thanks, but don't count on me. I'm trying to finish up here today, and there are a lot of legal papers to be prepared and signed. Something rather big, Faith, but I'll tell you all about it tonight."

Whether he concluded the conversation abruptly or whether the connection was accidentally broken Faith did not know, but the result was the same. She had no opportunity to tell him of Cherry's engagement for the evening. She was so concerned with the possibility that Cherry and Nils might not see each other at all on this hurried trip of Nils that Faith gave little time to speculating on the nature of the "something big" of which Nils had spoken, nor did she mention that part of the conversation to Rhoda, who was as excited over the prospect of a visit from her brother, as if he had been a sweetheart.

Cherry was at home by half-past five. She whirled gayly through her duties for the baby, whisked her off to a brisk walk in the stinging cold air, and came back almost dancing with exuberance and looking as beautiful and carefree as if she had never suffered a headache in her life.

"Going to have fun, Faith, old dear!" she sang ecstatically. "Going to have heaps of fun! Lord, but I'm simply ripe for adventure. Got to wash my hair and manure my nails. Hoopla! Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling to be young and beautiful and all dated up for a swell party?"

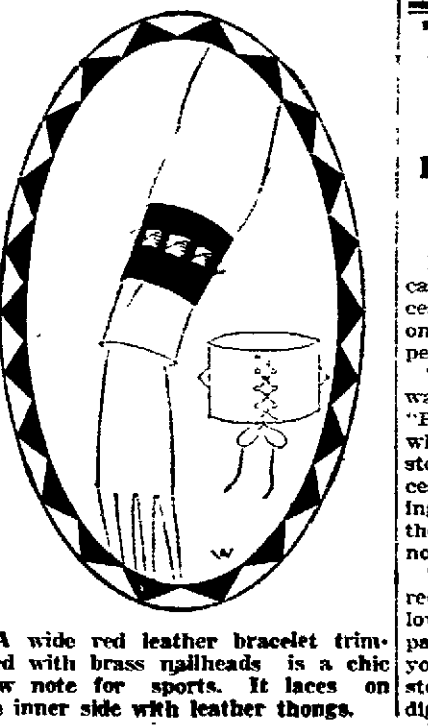

Half an hour later Cherry was sitting on a hassock at Faith's feet, busy with nail file and buffer, while Faith, using a big soft Turkish towel, was rubbing the wet, short curls to dry them.

"Wouldn't it be funny if Bill Warren proposed tonight?" Cherry remarked casually. "Poor duck! He's been half-seduced to be seen with me, since my disgrace."

"Please don't, Cherry," Faith begged. "You were acquitted."

"Of murder—yes," Cherry shrugged her slim, bare little shoulders. She was

"I guess we'd better watch, instead, 'cause I don't care to break my head," laughed Copy as he rushed and helped poor Clowny to his feet. And so they watched the rubber men, and cheered their queer stunts now and then. Said Clowny, "After this I think I'll be much more discreet."

Poor Bill has been as loyal to me as his family and friends would let him be, and now I think I detect the well-known glint in his eye. Yes, Faith, I have a hunch I'm going to be proposed to tonight."

"Are you going to accept him?" Faith asked in a voice that was suddenly slow and dreary.

"Half a loaf, darling! But—I don't know! All dry? I'll dress then!"

THE ONLY WAY TO END INDIGESTION
Remove the Cause and You Remove the Pain
Nine-tenths of digestive troubles are caused by food fermentation and excess acid in the stomach, and it is only by ending these conditions that permanent relief can be hoped for.

The quickest, safest, and surest way to do this is to take a little "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or whenever pain is felt. This not only stops fermentation and neutralizes excess acid, but exerts a soothing, healing and strengthening influence on the weakened stomach, and induces normal healthy digestion.

That is why millions everywhere recommend "Pape's Diapiesin." Follow their sound advice—get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" from your druggist at once, and insure stomach health, with the fear of indigestion banished forever.

Four Seasons Depicted At Club Dinner

UNIQUE decorations, a varied program and a business meeting combined to make the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club Tuesday night an outstanding one of the year.

Spring, summer, autumn and winter were represented at the party which consisted of a dinner at 6:30 at Hotel Northern. KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSNO SALARY CHANGES FOR OFFICERS AND
EMPLOYEES OF CITYMayor Names Election
Boards at Council Meeting
Tuesday Night

Kaukauna—No changes were made in the salaries of city officials and employees for the coming year at the city council meeting Tuesday evening. This action was taken despite a petition received from the firemen asking for an increase in salary. The petition requested that fire men be paid according to years of service and suggested the following scale: $110 per month for first year, $115 per month for second year, $120 per month for third year and $125 per month for 4 years of service and over with the captains receiving an additional $5 per month.

Alderman Peter Hoolahan maintained that the fire men reserved the right for giving in that hole all day waiting for fires. "They are the poorest paid outfit in the valley and should at least be given a living wage," the alderman added. Alderman W. H. Cooper said he thought the petition wasn't presented to the right body, that it should have gone to the fire and police commission.

Salaries of city officials and employees for the coming year will be as follows: Mayor, $600; clerk, $2,100; city attorney, $720 per year and $10 per day and expenses for attendance at court; city nurse, $150 per month; city physician, $500 per year; fire chief, $150 for inspection and $200 per year; captain of firemen, $1,350 per year; firemen, $1,250 per year; chief of police, $1,500 per year and $35 per month for maintenance of automobile; policemen, $1,500 per year; street commissioners, $1,500 per year; sealer of weights and measures, $35 per month and an additional $5 per month for expenses; members of the board of public works, $75 per year; clerk of the board of public works, $75 per year; utility commission, $7.50 per meeting; bridge tenders, $100 per month; aldermen, $120 per year and $5 each for extra meeting not to exceed one extra meeting each month.

Mayor W. C. Sullivan appointed the following election boards: First precinct, chairman, Joseph Lefevre; inspectors, Steve Callahan and Caspar Feogan; ballot clerks, Mrs. George Rowk and Mrs. Arthur Ulrich; clerks of election, Mrs. Roy Nelson and Mrs. William Pahnke; Second precinct, chairman, Mrs. F. J. Baunings; inspectors, Roman Feogan and Herbert Haessly; ballot clerks, Frank Titman and Mrs. George Burton; clerks of election, Mrs. Mary Hoeyman and Mrs. Pearl Kendall; Third precinct, chairman, Ben Heilmann; inspectors, Philip Hartzheim and Reinhardt Borchert; ballot clerks, Joseph Zink and Joseph Melchior; clerks of election, Miss Selma Wiggers and Mrs. William Schaeffer; Fourth precinct, chairman, A. F. Mayer; inspectors, L. E. Wobster and Mrs. W. Paschen; ballot clerks, Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. Emma Gerharz; clerks of election, Henry Keyzers and Frank Towsey.

Alderman George L. Smith read a communication from the United Studios Corporation of Chicago, the firm contemplating the erection of a modern theater in Kaukauna, stating that the site necessary for the showhouse must have a 25 foot frontage and a depth of 100 feet. Mr. Smith told the council that the time had come when some definite action one way or the other had to be taken and he asked the city attorney to look up the legal steps necessary to permit the city to give the corporation a site on which to build the showhouse.

"STOP HERBER" KAWS'
SLOGAN FOR BAY GAME

Kaukauna—West Green Bay Invades Kaukauna on Wednesday evening for one of the two non-conference basketball games on the Kaws schedule. The invaders have a "one man team" in Herber. In past games it has been shown that when Herber was stopped the squad was stopped and the Kaws hope to keep the star well covered and perhaps come out on the long end of the score.

W. Miller will start at center with Farwell and Esler at the forwards and Ferguson and Sager at the guards. This seems to be the combination that works best. In reserve Coach Harry McAndrews still has L. Derus, Richard Landreman and M. Miller.

The game is scheduled for 8 o'clock and will be preceded by a preliminary contest between two local teams. Wright of Appleton will referee the main attraction.

200 EXAMINATIONS

Will Observe Annual Mission Day

Special to Post-Crescent:
Forest Junction—A crowd of approximately 200 persons were present at the community hall Monday evening when the local Pavilion Clippers beat the Manitowoc Follies Five, professional girls' basketball team of national repute. Milton Seybold, center, Mitchell and Raymond Stanelle, forwards, and Edwin Seybold and Cornelius Kosmosky guards comprised the local lineup. The teams kept fairly well abreast throughout the game, the Pavilion Clippers leading until the last quarter, when the home players clinched the game 24 to 21.

The excellent showing made by the Follies convinced spectators of their rightful place as champions among girls' teams. BEANS!

A wonderful new kind with the real "baked-out-of-doors" taste

a cup of molasses
a cup of brown sugar
a layer of sugar-cured pork
a layer of beans
a layer of sugar-cured pork
a layer of beans

Now you can enjoy beans like those baked in the ground in the Maine woods

Never did baked beans have such flavor as those old-time beans baked in the outdoor oven—the bean hole—of the Maine woods lumber camps. The richest of ingredients went into the big-bellied iron bean pot—lots of sugar-cured pork, molasses and brown sugar. Then the pot was buried in the bean hole to cook all night in a bed of pine embers.

For the first time, now, that wonderful woods flavor is reproduced. In Bean Hole Beans! They're like no other beans you've ever tasted! Enjoy this new deliciousness today. Your grocer has Bean Hole Beans—medium and large size.

Boy Scouts Celebrate Birthday Anniversary Of Founder And Of Memory Of George Washington

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—The names of two great leaders ring around the world today. One is George Washington; the other, ask any American boy. He will tell you that Sir Robert Baden-Powell represents to youth an almost identical reincarnation of the ideals of the first president of the United States. Loyalty, trustworthiness, strength of character and of body, unselfishness—these are but a few of the aims which the founder of the Boy Scout movement seeks to implant in modern boyhood.

Today, at 70, Lieutenant General Baden-Powell is remembered by Great Britain as the greatest hero of the Boer War. But that, to him, is a lesser honor than the homage of a million and a half Boy Scouts, of every creed, class and nationality. His birthday has brought, from all over the world, more letters, cablegrams and gifts than ever were showered upon a crowned head.

ASPIRED TO STAGE
When "B. P." as he is known everywhere, was a boy himself, his clergyman father wanted him to go into the church. He held out for a stage career and the conflict of wills was at a stalemate until one day Robert read that the army was to give examinations for young men desiring to become officers.

More for fun than anything else, he took the examinations. To his own and his father's amazement, he came out second in a list of 700. That settled it. He became a soldier at 18. In those years every officer in the British army saw plenty of fighting. "B. P." served in India and Afghanistan. He took part in the Zululand operations in 1888 and was mentioned in dispatches.

When the last Boer War broke out, he soon was in the thick of it. The contest was unequal in numbers, for the two little Boer republics were pitting themselves against the might of the British empire. But they were fighting in a vast country of which they knew every hill and valley. They won some brilliant victories and succeeded in cutting off British garrisons in the towns of Ladysmith, Kimberly and Mafeking.

"B. P." was in Mafeking, an open and unfortified town, with 1200 officers and men. The besieging force was much larger, but the English held out for months. Many of the defenders were killed, supplies were low and money as a circulating medium was out. Baden-Powell designed and issued a bank note which was used as currency. Only a few ever were turned in for redemption; the rest were held as priceless souvenirs of the famous siege. Mafeking was relieved on May 15, 1900, and when the news was flashed to London the celebration was as wild as an armistice night.

ROSE IN RANK
From commander of the Fifth Dragoon Guards, Baden-Powell was elevated to a major-generalship. Surprised was manifested that he was not given an honor by the king. But "B. P." not disgruntled, went ahead with his work. He organized the South African Constabulary and, on coming back to England, was put in command of an entire division.

Already he was at work on a plan that was to give him a second world fame. He always had been much interested in scouting and had written technical books on the subject. In his foreign service, natives had called him "Impanga" (the wolf). The Kaffirs termed him "the beast that does not sleep."

In August, 1907, when Baden-Powell formed the first Boy Scout troop, he intended it as an organization to be devoted to outdoor activities. But the enormous potentialities of the plan soon became evident and the following year he formally launched the movement along the line that still are followed in boys of all creeds, classes and nationalities. He believed the Boy Scout movement would develop character and intelligence, health and physical development, handicraft and skill, selfless service for others, happiness. He said, in now famous words: "To those who are not sure of what I mean by the term 'Boy Scout,' I may explain that it practically stands for gentleman—a man who can be trusted in his private, one who puts there first, self second, and his country third."

"There is great meaning in that word 'unselfish,' because selfishness is what the world is largely suffering from today—the selfishness of individuals, classes, creeds, parties and of nations."

HE TOURS WORLD
The movement spread like a prairie fire. Today there are more than 500,000 Boy Scouts in the British Empire, and more than a million in the rest of the world. International camaraderie of Scouts bring boys from all over the globe. Always the hero of their ovations is "B. P." He himself has toured the world in the interests of Scouting and his trips have been triumphal processions.

As a result of his services, he was knighted in 1909 and made a baronet in 1921.

Today, at 70, "B. P." is active and almost boyishly alert—sure evidence of the soundness of his teachings. He once was famous as a hunter of big game and still is a keen sportsman. He has written books on army scouting and military campaigns, as well as several volumes on the Boy Scout movement.

HE'S AN ARTIST
He is a successful painter and sculptor; some of his pieces have been displayed at the Royal Academy. "B. P." has gone far on two slogans that he invented for himself. Both, he says, are important: "Don't hurry; patience wins the day." "A smile and a stick will carry a man through almost any difficulty."

DOLORES COSTELLO REUNITES THREE WAR BUDDIES

Dolores Costello was instrumental in reuniting three war buddies during the filming of "Old San Francisco," her latest starring vehicle for the Warner Bros. The three were Allan Crossland, the director, Gordon Hollingshead, his assistant and Hal Mohr, the cameraman.

The three soldiers were assigned to the photographic division of the Signal Corps, upon their arrival overseas. The fact that they all came from the moving picture studios of Hollywood was a common bond. At that time some one got the idea that pictures having to do with hygiene and propaganda would benefit the morale of the men, and Crossland, having been a director, was selected to write and direct them. Hollingshead was to star in them and Mohr to do the photography. They had meagre equipment but their little story was highly praised by the powers that were.

Three years after their return from the war Hollingshead became Crossland's assistant director. Recently Mohr was given a long term contract for his fine work with Miss Costello in "The Third Degree," so the three buddies can make pictures on something else than bullybeef and goldfish.

"Old San Francisco" comes to Fischers Appleton Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

"SORRELL AND SON"
Herbert Brenon made Barrie's "Peter Pan" into a film and members of the intelligentsia began to take the art of the cinema seriously. Then he made "A Kiss for Cinderella," and after "Sorrell and Son," a universal story of father-and-son devotion. If the spontaneous reception accorded the latest Brenon opus last night and Monday night at the Elite Theatre is any criterion of general popular appraisal, "Sorrell and Son" is far and away the most entertaining and satisfying production which Herbert Brenon has made.

The acting of H. B. Warner,

Mickey McEan, Alice Joyce, Louis Wolheim, Anna Q. Nilsson, Lionel Belmore, Carmel Myers, Nils Asther and other practiced performers in the cast leaves nothing to be desired. The direction by Herbert Brenon is at all times intelligent, logical, interesting and smart. Emotional values which make the story of "Sorrell and Son" so universally popular, are skillfully keyed and stressed at correct moments. It is as though Mr. Brenon stood in the conductor's pit with his audience as an orchestra and with his magic baton produced the emotional effects he wished when he wished them. For the audience cried, laughed, hated Buck and loved Sorrell, smiled wistfully and wept mightily as "Sorrell and Son" unfolded upon the screen.

There is that in Herbert Brenon's newest production which should make him proud. It's a fine picture and a great show. The engagement of "Sorrell and Son" has been extended and Friday will be the last showing of the picture.

"My skin was a sight"

"I couldn't look people in the face. I was so ashamed of my skin. It was always blotched with pimples and blackheads and at times itched terribly. I had tried everything and was so discouraged that I couldn't bring to take hope in anything. You can imagine my surprise therefore when one application of Rowies Mentho Sulphur almost completely cleared my skin. I could have danced with joy! In a short time you wouldn't know my skin—it was so clear, so soft and white."

Thousands of people are discovering that there is a remedy for skin trouble—even fiercest itching eczema. It's the magical combination of sulphur and menthol—sulphur for clearing the skin, menthol for healing the broken and irritated tissue. Rowies Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowies.

"EAT 'EM UP FOXES" IS NEW BATTLECRY OF STUDENTS HERE

When Appleton high school athletes trot onto the field from now on, they will be greeted with yells of "Get 'em Foxes" or "Get 'em Terriers" or something like that. The students for some time back had been wracking their brains for a suitable name for the athletes and a large number were suggested, the student body finally voting on it and choosing "Fox Terriers."

After choosing the name, suggestions were made that "terriers" should be changed to "terrors" and it is probable that both will be dropped, only the "fox" being retained.

SCHMIDT WILL LEAD STATE POPPY SALES

Red Arrow Division Man to Direct Campaign for Benefit of War Veterans

Wausau. (AP)—Major Edward J. Schmidt, Manitowoc, has been appointed state chairman for the 1928 Buddy Poppy campaign of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, according to an announcement made today by Frank Loeffler of this city, commander of the department of Wisconsin.

Major Schmidt, who fought in France with the Red Arrow Division, is at present commander of the Second Battalion, 127th Infantry, 32nd Division.

He has been adjutant and quartermaster of the Department of Wisconsin, V. F. W. for several years, and is well known throughout the state for his work in this veterans' organization.

The Buddy Poppies sold by V. F. W. each year for wear on Memorial day are all made by disabled veterans still in government hospitals, and the money secured through this sale goes for relief work among needy veterans and their families after a percentage has been set aside for the Veterans of Foreign Wars national home for widows and orphans at Eaton Rapids, Michigan.

LAWRENCE QUINTET WORKS FOR RIPON BATTLE FRIDAY

Strong Redmen Favored To Whip Viking Five In Midwest Conference Game

Rippe Cagers Beat Coe, 34-17, and Carroll Five in Last Week's Tiffs

Playing Ripon's stellar basketball five here Friday evening in a Midwest conference cage battle, Coach A. C. Denny's Lawrence college sophomores are underdogs and are given little chance for a victory. Ripon trounced Lawrence a few weeks ago at Ripon and when the teams clash at Armory G, the Redmen will have a much more impressive record since the first Viking game.

Since that time Ripon whipped Carroll at Waukesha which had beaten Lawrence on the Appleton floor just previous. Then Coe, on its Wisconsin invasion, was trounced, 34-17, with Capt. Cliff Halvorson scoring nine baskets for the Reds. Coe came here after the Ripon game a tired crew and lost to Lawrence 26-20 only in the final minutes. So all indications give the Red the big edge though the Vikings are determined to make the season a success by upsetting the bucket heavily with its ancient rival, over whom a win is far sweeter than over any other two foes.

The teams are tied for third in the Midwest race and the winner will move to a few percentage points from second, ready to step in when Coe comes again. The loser may drop to fifth depending on the other loop battles of the weekend and will at least be in fourth.

The local quint is getting plenty of work this week for the important battle and a special defense is being built to halt the scoring rampages of Halvorson, which has given the Red most of its victories this year.

Lawrence stars have hopes for a victory like last week against Coe when 12 of 13 attempts dropped through the netting. If the game is fairly close this department may determine the winners and chances will favor the Vikings if they work like last Saturday.

Denny probably will start Schneller at center, Stead and Pierce at guards and Remmel and Hoffman at forwards. The freshman teams of the two schools will meet in a preliminary game.

15 APPLETON TEAMS IN STATE LEGION PIN MEET

Appleton, with Fond du Lac, has the most teams entered in the second annual Wisconsin department American Legion bowling tournament, which will be held from March 31 to April 30 at the Columbus club alleys, Green Bay, according to reports from the Bay. The entry lists to date show 15 teams from Appleton and Fondy, Milwaukee being next with 7.

The Oney Johnson post of Appleton sponsored the first annual meet, in fact started the movement for a state tourney, last year and it was a decided success due to efforts of local officers, especially C. O. Baetz, post commander, then athletic chairman, and Walter Schultz.

As host to the tournament this year, Sullivan post of Green Bay is planning to enter 60 teams. There are now 38 teams from other cities in the state entered in the tournament which leads the committee to believe that a new record in American legion bowling will be before entries close, March 15.

A special program on the opening night, March 31, has been planned by the association and on this occasion some of the most notable figures in the American legion in Wisconsin will be seen in action. Mayor James H. McClellan of Green Bay will lead a city hall team against a state headquarters team under the command of Frank J. Schneller, commander of the Wisconsin department. In addition Col. Phil C. Westphal, former commander of the 121st artillery will roll.

MacDonald Smith Proves Year's Golf Sensation

New York—There's an old, familiar magic in MacDonald Smith's putter, a menacing whine to his woods and a confident click to his irons that have forced the golfing wisecracks to take a new inventory of how the summer's tournament spoils are to be divided.

Mac Smith, ruddy-faced young member of the Carnoustie Springs, is back 'on,' and the fact brings no particular joy to the professional cian, who knows that when he is able to haul out all the shots in his weather-stained bag there's no man harder to catch.

Since 1919, when he first appeared in the National Open to lose out in the playoff with his brother, Aleck, and J. J. McDermott, Mac Smith's career has been a battle against such odds as only ill health can produce.

From that year until 1915 he was a mediocre campaigner, a player whose game steadily grew more polished, but who was increasingly unable to stand the physical strain of a championship grudge. He disappeared from the picture in 1915, going to California to pull himself together, and, because he had been almost forgotten, he astonished golfdom by finishing fifth, 11 strokes behind Jim Barnes, in the Open at Columbia in 1921.

He was back again in '25 to come in eight strokes behind Bobby Jones and the following year to be 11 away from Armour and Cooper. Then, even his closest friends declared, was the end of Mac Smith.

But for a man consigned to the golf scrap heap, the kid of the Carnoustie Smiths appears to have been slightly underestimated as the results of the winter golf campaign are tabulated. Mac has literally cleaned house. He won the Los Angeles Open, richest of all the western prize, the South-Cen-

VIKING GRAPPLERS MEET GREEN BAY Y

Mat Rivals Resume Old Feud at Bay Association on Thursday

Seven members of the Lawrence college wrestling team will travel to Green Bay Thursday evening for an intercity match with the Bay Y. M. C. A. squad, one of the strongest in the state and a team that grasped the University of Wisconsin national title in the year. The Baymen will be more experienced than the Blues and have had much more and harder work this year but the local boys expect to give them a hard battle.

Alvin Krohn, Viking football tackle, will meet Earl Nelson in the heavyweight class. In the light heavyweight class Art Humphrey, another grider, will battle Ivan Gillespie. In the 155-pound class Albert Lautenbach, Lawrence, will meet Paul Giese, Green Bay; in the 145-pound class Letter of Lawrence will battle John Meyers, class of the Bay squad; in the 135-pound class Walter Olson, also a star boxer, will meet Lloyd Pirceux, Thayer Snively or Les Lawrence. Other Blue grapplers who will take part at the Bay are Bertin Dittmer, 125 pounds, and Harvey Bryan, 112.

The Lawrence grapplers are going to the Bay city with a determination to erase the sting of two former defeats at the hands of the home matmen.

The meet will be made further attractive by an exhibition of fencing put on by two members of Lawrence fencing class while the boxing exhibitions will probably be between two Lawrence men, an effort is being made to find a fencer to represent the association. Demonstrations will be in the use of the foil, epee, and sabre.

Coach Chet Wiley, of East High, a former conference wrestler, will referee the matches, and Dr. W. P. Tipper, at the Columbus club, have agreed to act as judges.

ATHLETES START EFFORTS TO MAKE OLYMPIC BERTHS

Pick Board of Strategy for American Representation in Next Few Days

New York—(AP)—The Olympic board of strategy, otherwise the coaching staff of the American track and field team, will be picked within the next few days.

The chief strategist, or head coach, already has been decided upon, this post, apparently by unanimous consent, goes to Lawson Robertson of the University of Pennsylvania. He has the backing of the Amateur Athletic union which is sufficient to insure his endorsement by the Olympic committee as a whole. As a matter of fact, "Bobbie" already has been exercising the function of head coach, mapping his program and gathering a coterie of talent under his wing at Franklin field.

Realizing that he cannot stand as much wear and tear of a track and field campaign as before, Hal Osborn, veteran all-around star, may pass up defense of the Olympic decathlon title in order to concentrate on the running high jump, where he also is the Olympic king.

Osborn has told Lawson Robertson he will enter the official decathlon tryouts in connection with the Penn relays, late in April, to determine just how much he can shoulder. If he finds difficulty in the all-around test, the Illinois schoolmaster will turn his attention to the high jump but Robertson is hopeful the veteran will stage a come-back and tackle both assignments.

CONGER SHOWS STUFF

To judge from the way such stars as Ray Conger and Jimmy Quinn have been jumping into the limelight, the selection of the Olympic team will be anything but a cut and dried affair.

Just when Lloyd Hahn looked to have the middle distance field all to himself Conger has come along to upset the Nebraska as well as Dr. Otto Peltzer, the German champion. Regardless of the merits of the elbowing controversy Conger has demonstrated he has some speed to burn.

Uncle Sam may suffer from an embarrassment of sprinting riches. Locke, Huser, Scholz, Al Miller, Folwell Soull and Wildermuth are an all-star flock but they all bowed to the fleet-footed Quinn of Holy Cross, in the New York A. C. indoor meet.

There was no fluke to Quinn's performance, as a result of which there is less skepticism than before over his reputed 100-yard performance in 9.3 seconds outdoors last year.

The flying squadron from the Pacific coast, headed by Charley Paddock and Charley Borah, also will be heard from when the sprinting roll is called.

There will be room for more sprinters, however, than any other Olympic specialty because 12 will be needed to fill the entries for the 100 and 200-meter dashes as well as the 400-meter relay race.

Kansas City—Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis, won from Jimmy Byrne, Louisville (10).

Indianapolis—Bobbie Williams, New York, outpointed Joe Packo, Toledo (10).

Favorites were easy victors Tuesday evening in the Industrial-Commercial Basketball League at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, although the two cellar teams of the league, their opponents gave them lots of scores the first half. They broke loose the final periods, however, to run up big scores.

The Fox Rivers beat the Kaukauna Y. 33-21, and the Webers ran up the highest score of the league to date, 55-22, on Co. D.

In the first game the Kaukauna Y. held a lead over the husky second-place Foxmen at the quarter by several points, the eventual winners counting only on free throws. At the half the score was 16-12 for the Foxmen but early in the third period the Kawmen pulled up on even terms at a 18-18 score. Just before the period ended Ray Tornow was fouled while shooting and he made the basket and both throws for a 22-19 lead at the close. In the final quarter, the Foxmen broke loose, scoring eleven points in a shooting rampage, while holding their foes to a three points.

Ray Tornow led the winners with six baskets and three free tries for 15 of 33 points. Berro had three baskets and three free throws, Son Tornow two and a free throw and Schroeder and Frieders a basket each. For Kaukauna Miller led the scoring with four baskets and two free tries for 10 of 21 points. Stecker added three ringers and Doerfler one and Verbeten has three free throws.

In the second game Co. D had only four men present and rather than take a forfeit the Weber five decided to play an entire game with four men against four. This was done and the Guardsmen led 19-6 at the first quarter. Webers came back for a 24-18 lead at the half and then coasted in with a 55-22 win, holding the losers to 3 points while scoring 18 baskets themselves.

BADGER CAGEMEN HAVE HARD WEEK

Two Purdue Games Will Decide Chances of Cards for Banner

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's cagers, successful negotiators of rocky earlier stages of conference play have another peak to climb tomorrow and Saturday when they play Purdue.

Wisconsin, has been shown by the fact that they are tied with Purdue for the conference lead. Whether they can remain on the heights is another question, and one that the two games, one to be played here tomorrow and the other Saturday at LaFayette, will largely decide.

What is expected to be a full tilt game when Iowa is played here March 3, but the mountaineering will come again in earnest in the last two games on the schedule—Michigan at Ann Arbor March 5, and Illinois at Urbana, March 9.

Wisconsin and Purdue each now have six wins and one loss, with an .857 average.

The Badgers, according to Iowa City reports, flashed a strong defense in the Iowa game earlier this week, and their team play proved baffling to the Hawkeyes five.

In the Ohio State game here, Wisconsin ended up with good teamwork and a strong defense, but the earlier part of the game showed the Cardinals below form. It was not until the latter part of the game that the Badgers showed their strength to take, and hold, the lead.

Cummings and "Stretch" Murphy, forward and center for Purdue, are two of the men expected to cause most trouble to Wisconsin in the impending games. In the Purdue-Michigan game they were largely responsible for the lopsided Purdue score at the end of the first half.

M'GRAW TRIES OTT AT SECOND IN EARLY CAMP

New York—(AP)—Experts who have been picking Andy Cohen or Andy Reese to play second base for the New York Giants apparently failed to take M'Graw into their consideration.

At Hot Springs, Ark., where the Giants' advance guard is training, he started as Melvin Ott, utility outfielder and pinch hitter at the keystone sack.

When M'Graw, the nation's best leaguer, was signed a two-year contract with the New York Yankees.

M'Graw, who put on the "big act" for his brother hitters so often last year, has his name suggested in the box seats about as frequently as the regular infielders, now, when games and games are being played in the off-season, allowing only one earned run per game.

TACOMA FEATHER WANTS TO BATTLE CANZERONI

Los Angeles—(AP)—Wirt L. Ross, manager of Sacramento Zorilla bushy-haired featherweight from Tacoma, announced yesterday that he had been offered $2,000 by the New York Athletic council, as the basis of a challenge to Tony Canzeroni, champion of the lightweight division. Zorilla has defeated about every featherweight of new blood in the section. He possesses a record of 12 victories in 15 starts.

Decatur, Ill.—Jimmy Sayres and Billy Knowles, Chicago, drew the Joe Thomas, Boston, but knocked out Dugger Nelson, St. Louis (4).

Oysters

The United States produces and consumes more oysters than any other country in the world. This boat has been out to the oyster beds off the New Jersey coast. Oysters are caught by dragging heavy dredges or tongs and rakes across the bottom of the fishing grounds.

In France and other countries oysters are raised carefully. Eggs are placed in cases to be hatched and after six months are planted in oyster beds.

When the oysters have grown to their full size they are collected in baskets from the beds. A great part of this work is done by women.

Oysters in their sea beds often lie in mud, so they are dumped in shallow water near the shore. As the tide rises and falls it washes them clean. If they are not needed at once they will remain alive here, while they would die and become unfit for food if left long out of water. (To Be Continued)

A Clean House Indicates a Good Housekeeper

The use of coal means constant drudgery to keep a house clean. It makes everything smudgy, grimy and dusty. You can avoid all this by using Milwaukee Solvay Coke

It makes no smoke—no soot—no grime—no cinders and very little ash. It is easy to handle, costs less than hard coal and makes more heat. Ask your dealer to send you a ton of MILWAUKEE SOLVAY COKE, try it and you will never use any other fuel.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS FAVOR SNOW REMOVAL ON ANNUAL PROGRAMS

Consensus of Opinion Is That Year Round Travel Is Demanded by People

County supervisors are pleased with the way snow removal has been handled by the county highway department this winter and believe that annual appropriations will be made in the future for the work.

"If an annual appropriation will insure as little snow every winter as we had so far this year, then I am doubly in favor of the appropriation," said Supervisor Mike Mack, Shiocton, chairman of the county board.

Supervisor Joseph Doerfler, Kimberly, believes snow removal no longer an issue. "Modern business competition demands that roads be kept open, and snow removal is a necessity," Mr. Doerfler said. He also pointed out that people who had invested money in automobiles don't want to tie up the cars during the winter.

"No question about an annual appropriation for snow removal," Supervisor Anton Jansen, Little Chute, said. "The matter is all settled and there will be no trouble. The people want snow removal and the county board will give it to them."

If no more snow falls during the next six weeks than fell during the last few months, Supervisor William Beck, Seymour, predicted there will be enough money left from the 1927-28 appropriation to take care of snow removal next winter.

"I am very much in favor of an annual appropriation for snow removal if it is needed," said Supervisor Anthony McClone, Deer Creek. Mr. McClone is a member of the highway committee.

Merida, Spain—Carefully ex-

The theater is in a remarkable condition of preservation considering that it has been hidden for centuries under a thick layer of soil. Jose Ramon Melida, member of the Spanish Academy of History, is in charge of the work of excavation.

Galleries, pit orchestra stalls, boxes, amphitheater, stage, dressing rooms and everything else connected with a theatrical performance are almost perfectly preserved. Much of the construction is of marble.
